

A FACULTY WORKSHOP

Applying the Key Principles of Diversity into the Curriculum

with

Dr. Renay Scales

Wednesday, November 11, 2009

Butler Library 210 • 8:30 a.m. to noon (A light breakfast precedes the 9 a.m. workshop)

This workshop will engage faculty in Logic Models developed by Dr. Renay Scales based on over thirty years of research in diversity and ethics. It will engage faculty in learning pragmatic skills and practices that help infuse the principles and practices of diversity into the curriculum.

WORKSHOP GOALS:

- Introduce faculty to the theoretical foundations of infusing diversity into the curriculum.
- Enhance skills of both new and experienced faculty interested in incorporating topics of diversity into their courses.
 - Provide information about creating classrooms of inclusion.
 - Provide examples of best practices.
- Engage faculty in hands-on activities.

Dr. Scales serves in a faculty position at George Mason University, where she directs a center that provides multicultural research and related resources to the university community.
